

Abstract

I request support for field research that will lead to a comprehensive journal article geared for publication in a leading disciplinary journal (e.g., American Historical Review). It is my intention to write an article about “colonial tourism” that, although it will take as its case study the Empire of Japan, will be of interest to all historians, whatever their country of specialty.